“ I think about you everyday. I miss you so much. Just yesterday I was reminiscing on us going to your favorite little Chinese restaurant J.L kitchen by the old house you would get the salt and pepper fish extra jalapeños with chow mein lunch combo while I'd get the orange chicken with the fried rice and potstickers to share. I love how you would always remember to ask the waitress (who knew us by heart and say us at the same table each time) for potsticker sauce not spicy because you knew that's how i liked it. I love how we would both sip the sweet and sour soup but you would always eat the tofu and little black stars at the bottom of mine because you said it was healthy and I wouldn't touch them. Lol . Everywhere I see and go I think the memories we made and times we shared at that exact place. I love you and miss you so much .

“ You were always full of so much life. You smiled even on the darkest days, you laughed when you were in pain and made others laugh when things went wrong. You carried such a heavy weight on your shoulders ever since we were kids, I admire you for the strength that you have shown even on the weakest days. True heart through and through. I know things did not go the way you planned, or any of our plans but I know that you would want us to carry the same strength that you have given this world even when all odds are against it.
Listen for your laugh, your advice and always remember your love that will remain in our hearts. I love you Junior .
